SALLY WEST

Sally West's paintings art employ a combination of texture, abstraction, and calming colors. The movement of the thick paint strokes is reminiscent of a light breeze or waves. This is communicated even more clearly with pastels and delicate shades of color in her artworks' backgrounds.

Born in West Wyalong, Central New South Wales, West grew up on a farm before moving to Eastern Sydney during her teenage years. Over the years, West has traveled across and lived in both Europe and Southeast Asia to gain inspiration for her paintings.

Although her international journeys influenced her style and color palette, West's subject matter of sailboats and flowers remain very close to home. Some works utilize brighter earthy colors for a bright day, while others choose muted palettes for the wash of fog on the ocean or haze of the sun. West's use of color is uniquely her own and conveys the feeling of comfort associated with vague familiarity.

West is a central figure of the New South Wales and coastal art scene. Since her first breakthrough solo exhibition in New York in 2011, West's artworks are highly sought-after internationally. She has won and placed as a finalist in numerous worldwide art competitions and juried exhibitions throughout her career. Her artworks are exhibited with influential galleries across Australia as well as in New York.
